Dispute the issues of propriety, when the SEC demands advise as to who had pre-knowledge of the Report before its release, as it always does, do you really think that it is wise to say that RMS was given the opportunity to 'influence' the Report? This would undermine all F&J has done.

I don't understand this message, Hal. You said in your email over weekend we could read penultimate draft. If not, then I need you to read the draft to RS et al. Will you respond to that portion of my email please?
